

History from page 17 down through the various owners, her body lay in state in the home for three weeks.

The home was sold to Wilhemina's brother, Joseph Jeckering. The business prospered until 1923 when it was bought by a fourth grocer by the name of Charles Barlow who opened the first White Villa Grocery Store in Dayton. The business went on its longest run from 1923 to 1945.

The building began a long, slow, slide into dereliction when it was bought by Jim Jones in 1992 and completely restored it. The current owners are Jack and Betty Milliff.

The home is in excellent condition and has been fairly well modernized.

What sets the home apart are See History on page 19
